FLO Director

Ann Greenberg has extensive experience in government, having worked for over 15 years as a contractor and direct hire employee with the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), United States Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) and the Department of State. Ms. Greenberg is also a Foreign Service family member with over nine years of first-hand knowledge of the unique social, economic, spousal employment, education and health issues facing Foreign Service families in overseas environments.

Before her tenure at FLO, Ms. Greenberg served as a Regional Employment Advisor in Central America under the Department of State's spousal employment initiative, the Strategic Networking Assistance Program (SNAP). Prior to that, at overseas posts in Lithuania (1996-1999) and El Salvador (2001-2005), she maintained her professional career through short-term contracts and consulting opportunities including as a trainer in public speaking and presentations, director of a law firm, environmental consultancies with US-based contractors and NGOs, and working with local companies on their video and website marketing activities. Ms. Greenberg is a fluent Spanish speaker and is experienced in the design and implementation of workshops and seminars for cross-cultural audiences. She has an additional six years of experience living, working and studying abroad in countries on five continents.

Ms. Greenberg is a graduate of Carleton College and Drexel University, with a Master's Degree in Environmental Science, and has an impressive range of experience in international environmental management. Prior to that, Ann taught secondary school science and served in the Peace Corps in Zaire.
